

Reducing the standards related language or nudity viewable by our youngest and most impressionable minds is irresponsible, irrational and completely negligent on the part of the FCC. Further more, I would encourage the standards to be raised to allow less foul or course language and less sexual or nude content than what is currently allowable. Please do not relax or lower the decency standards.

As it has been said, having then inability to adjudicate each individual complaint does not mean that the FCC should relax the standards in order to seemingly just lighten the load. Quite the opposite, please do what you have been sworn by and in duty to provide to the American public.

Thank you for your consideration.
